

A birthday party for Mum

Lam Wing Shan, Wing (5D)

Today was my mother's birthday. My sister and I were organizing a birthday party for her. We have already planned this for a week. But we couldn't get time to work on it, so this morning my sister and I were home alone. I could finally use the to-do list that I have already prepared before.

First, we tidied up the living room to make space for decorations. My mum liked roses so we put rose patterns everywhere. We even put some stickers of roses on balloons.

After that, I went to the supermarket to buy her a present and a bunch of snacks and drinks while my sister was writing a birthday card at home. I bought my mum her favourite necklace. She always wants it but she doesn't want to waste money.

Suddenly, my sister called me. 'Calvin, Mum is home. Have you bought the presents and the other stuff yet?' I replied, 'Yes, I have. I'm gonna come home now.'

After I went back home, I set all the snacks and drinks on the table. Then, my dad asked, 'Calvin? Where's the cake?' I never felt so disappointed of myself. I kept suffering when I tried to explain but my mum consoled me and said, 'It's okay. It is just a minor mistake. And we can replace the cake with cupcakes.' I felt a lot better and was relieved that she wasn't angry at me.

In the end, everyone enjoyed the party. My mum was so pleased when she saw that I got her the precious necklace and she cherished it a lot. This was the best day of her life.
